Schedule "A"

Reasons for Designation

The subject property is recommended for designation on the grounds of its design value, historical value and contextual value. Designation is to include the original stone work of the exterior walls, as well as the original interior woodwork including the original floors. The one and one-half storey rectangular building, built circa 1840, is an early example of Scottish stone masonry within the Township of North Dumfries. The house is representative of the Georgian architectural style that was popular in Upper Canada in the early 19th Century and is also an early example of the one and one-half storey stone farm house found throughout the Township. The original owner, James Deans, was one of the early settlers to the North Dumfries Area. James Deans was a Presbyterian who was one of the oldest and respected members of the Central Church. It is also said that James Deans helped make the Reform Party what it was since he was "a Reformer to the backbone".
